

Sanja Stojanović, MPharm, PhD is Assistant Professor, since 2020, and Senior Research Associate, since 2022, at Department of Biology with Human Genetics, Faculty of Medicine, University of Niš, Niš, Serbia. She obtained her MPharm degree in 2012 at Faculty of Medicine, University of Niš and PhD degree in Cell and Tissue Biology in 2019 at Faculty of Biology, University of Belgrade, Belgrade, Serbia. In 2019, she obtained Specialist degree in Biology – Genetics at Faculty of Biology, University of Belgrade. She is doing research in the field of stem cells, adipose tissue biology, tissue engineering, regenerative medicine and molecular biology. She is an expert for in vitro cell models and in vivo animal models for testing various biologically active compounds and biomaterials. She authored and co-authored more than 50 scientific articles in journals with impact factor, several book chapters and many other articles and conference papers. She was or is involved in several national and international research projects and has numerous collaborations with colleagues from national and international institutions.